Nicola De Luigi is an associate professor of Sociology at the University of Bologna since 2014. In the last decade, his research activities have focused on two main fields: youth studies and social policy.

In particular, his research activities have addressed the following issues: gender inequalities in the transition from education to the labour market, educational processes and labour market changes, young people and gambling, youth politics and participation in urban spaces.

He is currently involved in several research projects concerning young people's participation in European urban spaces (PARTISPACE – Horizon 2020), adolescent gambling behaviour and attitudes (Young Millennials Monitor) and educational and labour market policies in relation to varieties of capitalism (Prin 2015).

He is the author of many papers and works with research institutes and networks at both national and international levels.
