Research fellow at the University of Turin starting from March 2024, she completed the PhD program in "European Union Law and National Legal Systems" at the University of Ferrara in January of the same year with a thesis on the European Union Agency for Asylum.

Between May and August 2022, she conducted research at HIAS (Greece-Lesbos), an NGO that, along with promoting advocacy activities, provides legal support to asylum seekers and beneficiaries of international protection and initiates strategic litigation to increase the levels of protection envisaged by the asylum system.

Over the years, she has worked as an expert in International Protection and Human Rights at the Territorial Commission of Genoa and as a specialized legal consultant in international protection for various organizations in the field (Diaconia Valdese, Coop. Cidas Bologna, and Italian Council for Refugees - CIR Onlus, Verona) and completed an internship at the Protection Unit of UNHCR Rome.
